1. Application and acceptance

This website is operated by Lex Markets Ltd. By accessing or using it, a visitor agrees to these terms. A visitor who does not agree should stop using the website. These terms apply only to this website and its public information. They are not a client agreement, financial-services agreement or trading terms.

2. Purpose of the website

The website provides trading-technology providers, liquidity institutions, banks, professional advisers and potential partners with information about the legal entity, proposed business model, technology infrastructure and operational readiness of LEX Markets. It does not provide client registration, account login, deposits, withdrawals, live pricing, order submission, trade execution, investment advice or client support.

3. Current status

Lex Markets Ltd. is in the business preparation stage and does not provide client onboarding, funding or trading services to the public. Proposed services, products, jurisdictions and launch dates depend on required external approvals, provider approval, effective contracts, system acceptance and internal launch approval. Nothing on the website means that MetaTrader 5 provider approval or contracting is complete, a banking or liquidity relationship exists, or live operations have commenced.

4. No offer or advice

Website content is general institutional information. It is not an offer of financial services, invitation to open an account, solicitation to buy or sell a security or derivative, investment or trading advice, research, quotation, prospectus or promise of product availability. Visitors must not rely solely on the website for investment, trading, credit, provider-onboarding or business decisions and should use formal documents and independent due diligence.

5. Accuracy and changes

The company seeks to keep website information accurate when published but does not warrant that it is always complete, current or error-free. Proposed business, architecture, products and implementation may change because of external approvals, commercial arrangements, risk assessment or provider requirements. The company may update, suspend or remove content without a separate notice for every change.

6. Permitted and prohibited use

Visitors may view, retain or print content for lawful institutional assessment, business communications and due diligence. The website must not be used for unlawful conduct, unauthorised access, malicious code, automated extraction, interference, impersonation, misrepresentation, intellectual-property infringement or conduct that may harm the company, website or a third party.

7. Intellectual property

Unless stated otherwise, the LEX Markets name, website design, text, graphics, marks and other content are owned or lawfully used by Lex Markets Ltd. They may not be copied, modified, publicly distributed, commercially exploited or used to imply endorsement or a commercial relationship without prior written consent.

8. Third-party content and links

References to third-party products, platforms or services explain intended technology or business direction only and do not imply a partnership, completed provider approval or endorsement. The company does not control and is not responsible for third-party content, availability, security or privacy practices.

9. Availability and security

The company does not warrant continuous, uninterrupted, error-free or malware-free access. Visitors should use appropriate device, network and backup safeguards. Access may be suspended for maintenance, security, legal or operational reasons.

10. Limitation of liability

To the fullest extent permitted by law, Lex Markets Ltd. and its directors, officers, personnel and providers are not liable for indirect, incidental, special, punitive or consequential loss arising from access, inability to access, use or reliance on the website. Nothing excludes or limits liability that applicable law does not permit to be excluded or limited.

11. Privacy and cookies

Personal-data processing is governed by the Privacy Policy. The website does not currently use advertising, marketing, analytics or cross-site tracking technologies. If cookies, analytics or other tracking technologies are introduced, the relevant policies will be updated before activation and consent obtained where required by applicable law.

12. Updates to these terms

The company may revise these terms. The updated version will be published with a new effective date. Continued access constitutes acceptance of the revised terms.

13. Governing law and disputes

Subject to mandatory applicable law, these terms are governed by the laws of Saint Lucia. Disputes relating to the terms or website are in principle submitted to the competent courts of Saint Lucia.

14. Contact

Questions about these terms may be sent to support@lexmarkets.io.

This English version is the governing version unless mandatory applicable law requires otherwise.
